

Acknowledgements

We would like to acknowledge the dedication and the caring concern provided by all those who helped to develop and continue to participate in the work of the Community Coordination for Safety in Relationships – CCSR Team and the Integrated Case Assessment Team – ICAT. In the process of working together, we have built strong professional connections and developed professional trust and respect. Because of this important work, we have enhanced safety in domestic violence.

Many thanks goes out to Debby Hamilton, Vernon Women’s Transition House Society and Sgt. Rob Daly with RCMP for their excellent work in developing the ICAT model and working through the privacy issues in sharing information within coordinated high risk domestic violence teams. They have proven themselves leaders in the work of community coordination in domestic violence.

We would also like to thank our ICAT training team; Debby Hamilton, Sgt. Rob Daly, Cst. Lisa McMullin with the Domestic Violence Unit in Vernon, and Gail Edinger, Community Coordination for Women’s Safety with the Ending Violence Association. This training was inspiring and motivated our community to move forward in our work with ICAT in high risk domestic violence in the Columbia Valley.

We want to offer a special thanks to Gail Edinger for the years of work she has done to guide communities and organizations into moving toward coordination. Gail has been a mentor and teacher to our team when we began this work and she continues to support and guide us in the process of moving forward. She is committed to women’s safety and has worked her entire career toward ending violence against women.

We offer our thanks for the support provided by Columbia Valley RCMP. Thanks to S/Sgt. Doug Pack, our past detachment commander who had high regard for the effort of coordination and opened the door to RCMP participation in coordination here the Columbia Valley.

We want to thank S/Sgt. Marko Shehovac, our current Columbia Valley Detachment Commander for his leadership in attending meetings and his support and encouragement in attendance from RCMP members. We also thank S/Sgt Shehovac for In Kind, office space and equipment for our meetings and for the administration of our team.

We offer a very special thanks to Cpl. Grant Simpson for stepping forward to add to his busy schedule, the role of CCSR/RCMP Liaison. Cpl. Simpson has fostered an excellent working relationship with community professionals and the Columbia Valley RCMP. No special funds have been set aside for a Domestic Violence Unit, however Cpl. Simpson believes in this work and has volunteered to add to his workload to the success of our coordination team and the safety of our community. Thanks so much Grant!

Acknowledgements

Thanks goes out to the Family Resource Centre of Invermere (FRC) under the leadership of Pat Cope. The FRC has supported this project as the administrative body. The FRC felt so strongly about this work, they did not budget any administrative funds so that all funds would go directly to our coordination team effort. The FRC supports this work whole heartedly and many core members of the CCSR and ICAT are staff of the FRC.

Finally, we want to thank the funders of this project. Without funds to support the many hours of dedicated work of coordination, this project would not evolve. We thank the Ministry of Public Safety and Solicitor General for funds that were directed toward a paid Coordinator for this project. We also thank the Columbia Valley Community Foundation and the Columbia Basin Trust for funds to cover our project expenses. We thank our funders for their faith and support in this very important work.

Respectfully,
Donna Power, CCSR Coordinator
